

The Corporate Health Ireland brand is changing to Optima Health

Over the coming months, the Corporate Health Ireland brand will transition to Optima Health.

Still the service you know and trust

For many of our customers, Corporate Health Ireland has been a trusted partner for years.

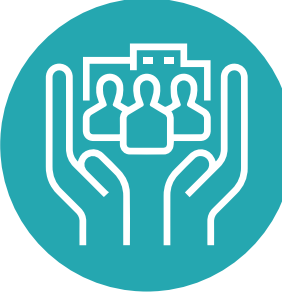

While you'll begin to see the Optima Health name replacing Corporate Health Ireland over time, we will continue to deliver the same great service and support you expect from us.

There will be no change to the services you receive, the people you work with, or how we support your organisation on a day-to-day basis.

The same service

Continue accessing services in the same way you do today.

The same people

Continue working with clinicians and teams you know and trust.

The same relationships

The customer relationships we've built remain at the heart of what we do.

The same commitment

The same focus on delivering excellent service and support.

Why we're taking this step

Earlier this year, we announced that PAM Group had been acquired by Optima Health. Today, we're proud to support organisations across the UK and Ireland as the leading Occupational Health and Wellbeing provider.

The next step is to bring our brands under one name.

Moving to the Optima Health brand name, creates greater clarity for our customers, colleagues and stakeholders and helps us better represent the expertise, capability and support available across our joined-up organisation.

One brand. The same commitment

The transition to Optima Health brings our brands together under one recognised name, while maintaining the great service, expertise and support our customers rely on every day.

What happens next?

You won't see every change overnight.

Over the next few months, you'll begin to see the Optima Health brand replacing the Corporate Health Ireland brand across communications, websites and customer touchpoints.

We'll keep you informed throughout the journey and share updates as key milestones are reached.

Keeping you informed

We've created this page as a central place for information about the transition to the Optima Health brand.

We'll continue to update it with key milestones and other exciting information as the programme progresses.

If you have any questions, please speak to your usual contact.

The brand is changing. Our commitment is not.

We're proud of everything Corporate Health Ireland has built over the years and excited about what comes next as part of Optima Health.

We look forward to continuing to support your organisation throughout this journey.
